It's a sure thing that I will use it every time I go on a photo site. During my work, I often have to find, not only missing photos, but pictures of certain subjects. The Find My Shots feature allows me to easily do just that, and it's certainly much easier than doing the same thing manually without counting photos on the screen.

"The world is moving toward a future where anyone can make real magic with files on the go using any surface," said Jacobo Torrado, senior vice president of product development at Adobe. "To enable that future, we are continuing to evolve Photoshop to enable users to work seamlessly across everything from their Mac desktop to the Web to any mobile or tablet device, transforming the way they create with images and deliver work. Partners and customers will notice the impact, and we look forward to the exciting and creative ways they will leverage this new vision of Photoshop." This fall, Adobe will also offer the Photoshop Foundation, a new incentive to new and current partners to invest in future releases of designs for use in businesses around the world. We'll continue to build on the foundation of our existing program and draw more licensees into the Creative Suite, creating new opportunities for individuals and businesses to achieve everything they need to create and deliver stunning images and applications. In the future, Adobe will build on the foundation of these products and bring together all the innovative features that have made Photoshop a household name. Photoshop for iPad is coming soon to enhance the design process on the go.
